

GHANA GOLD Study Tour

AT TUFTS UNIVERSITY

Accra & Legon

The Department of Geology is the oldest unit in the university. It was originally established to train technical workers for Ghana's mining industry.

University of Ghana administration building and tower

Dr. Kweame Amoah Labi, art historian at Legon, conducts a private tour of the university's Art Museum.

Kwame Nkrumah Complex, Institute of African Studies, University of Ghana. The university Art Museum is housed in this building

Meeting with Hon. Prof. Dominic Kwaku Fobih, Minister of Lands (3rd from Lft), Forestry & Mines, and Benjamin Dorgbetor, Financial Analyst of the Mines Commission (far right)

Political Scientist E. Gyimah-Boadi, one of Ghana's leading public intellectuals, is Executive Director of the Center for Democracy and Development-Ghana.

Geology Lecturer Thomas Akabzaa's book Boom and Dislocation: The Environmental and Social Impacts of Mining was published by Third World Network