Errata in FROM BACTERIA TO BACH AND BACK, as of July 6th, 2017:

1. Accent on p13 (è fatta)
   --thanks, Doug Hofstadter

2. p39, Jack Michael, not Lou Michaels and in index 465
   --thanks, Arthur Falk, email 2/24/17

3. page 141 in caption on Figure 7.1. There "differences" is written with only one "f".
   --thanks, David Strohmeier. 2/25/17

   --thanks, Thomas Frikker, 2/14/17

5. missing word, “men” on p329
   --thanks, Paul Oppenheim 2/2/17

6. On page 153, fn 39, delete the parenthetical statement in this sentence:
   An interpreted language in effect compiles each instruction as soon as it is composed (sometimes called “just-in-time compiling”).
   --thanks, Allan Schiffman 3.1.17

   --thanks, Mattijs Glas.

8. p276 Bybee 2006 is not in references. The reference is Bybee, Joan, 2006, “From Usage To Grammar: The Mind’s Response To Repetition”
   Language, 82, 4: pp711-33.
   --thanks, Enoch Lambert

9. p191 delete the left parenthesis before “We”
   --thanks, Justin Zazlavsky

10. p13. Corriere della Sera (not Serra)
    --thanks, Maurizio Bardelli

11. p. 301: ‘You attribute the quip “Anything you can do I can do meta” to Hofstadter, but in your previous book, Intuition Pumps, you attribute the quote to yourself (p.9 of the Norton hardcover).’
    (From Chris Via)

My response:
Dear Chris, As for the quip, Doug thinks I came up with it first, and I think Doug did. Nobody knows. I think we should just share the credit; sorta like Gilbert and Sullivan (or Chase and Sanborn).
Dan

12. p.314: “Eat!—its good for you!” This should be “it’s.”
--thanks, Chris Via (7/1/17)

13. p. 348: “...more accurate knowledge of what was going inside you.” This should read “...going on inside you.”
--thanks, Chris Via (7/1/17)
