

Eliot-Pearson Department of Child Development invites you to a brown bag lunch discussion on a recent article by Neil Swidey of The Boston Globe

“Why an iPhone could actually be good for your 3-year-old”

This brown bag will provide a chance to hear how faculty respond critically to real-world issues in formulating research questions and problems.

facilitated by doctoral students

Emily Lin & Chris Napolitano

with faculty respondents

Marina Bers

Ann Easterbrooks

Richard M. Lerner

To reference the article, please visit:

[http://www.boston.com/community/moms/articles/2009/11/01/
why\_an\_iphone\_could\_actually\_be\_good\_for\_your\_3\_year\_old/](http://www.boston.com/community/moms/articles/2009/11/01/why_an_iphone_could_actually_be_good_for_your_3_year_old/)

Monday, November 23, 2009

12:00 – 1:00pm

Stevens Library, Room 157

105 College Avenue, Medford

for more information: Emily Lin (es.lin@tufts.edu)

for driving directions: <http://ase.tufts.edu/epcd/directions.asp>