Photography is a powerful tool for invoking emotional responses. Tufts students travel the world as part of their education. They invariably take many photos to record their experiences. They render permanently what would otherwise be fleeting moments in time. In doing so, they create a continuing record of the diversity of the world and the diversity of students’ experiences and perspectives.

18 winning photos from the Arabic, Chinese, German, Hebrew, Japanese and Russian language programs are exhibited here. They combine students’ images with their interpretations in the relevant foreign languages.

This exhibition and competition is sponsored by the Department of International Literary and Cultural Studies, the Charles Smith Endowment Fund and the Chinese Program.

Vote for your favorite photo at: http://go.tufts.edu/ilcs_photo