The Harvard Laboratory for Youth Mental Health (isites.harvard.edu/jweisz) is currently seeking Summer volunteer research assistants to work on two projects: (a) a study of exposure therapy for anxious youths and (b) a study of therapist adherence and competence in conducting cognitive-behavioral therapy for depressed youths. The position will be based at William James Hall (33 Kirkland St, Cambridge, MA 02138) under the direction of Dr. John Weisz, Professor of Psychology, and graduate student, Nancy Lau.

Responsibilities may include: Literature searches, data entry and data analysis, participant recruitment, participant interactions, assisting in running studies, and other supporting activities.

Job Requirements: Students must be available to volunteer for 12-15 hours a week and a two-semester commitment is required. Alternatively, students who are interested in a Summer position only must be available to volunteer an extended number of hours over the Summer.

Applicants should send the following to Nancy Lau, at nancylau@fas.harvard.edu:
(1) a resume (including overall GPA)
(2) a short paragraph detailing relevant experiences, interests, and goals

Nancy Lau
Clinical Psychology Doctoral Student
Harvard University
William James Hall #1036