Position: Research Assistant (full-time)

We are seeking a Research Assistant to conduct a wide range of tasks in support of a research program in the Laboratory for Leveraging Evidence and Practice for Youth Mental Health Services under Dr. Sarah Kate Bearman in the Ferkauf Graduate School of Psychology at Yeshiva University in New York City. The lab focuses on dissemination and implementation of empirically supported interventions for youth mental health. The candidate will work under the direction of the Principal Investigator. Specific tasks will include word processing for scientific manuscripts, grants, and interview schedules; assisting in the creation of tables, graphs, spreadsheets, and presentations; conducting literature searches; corresponding with human subjects, grant offices, and community partners; assisting with project expenditures and reconciling financial statements; conducting basic data analysis as needed (construct variable and statistical analyses using SPSS); assisting with participant recruitment and data collecting; and assisting with observational coding of psychotherapy session recordings. The candidate must be proficient in Microsoft Word, Excel, Adobe and PowerPoint; have good command of the English language and excellent written and oral communication; must be extremely organized, detail oriented, able to maintain high quality of work and accurate, manage multiple tasks, problem solve, and work independently and efficiently. Further, the candidate must have experience with survey research, database management, SPSS, and IRB submissions. As a member of a collaborative research team, you will also be expected to interact with other team members and their research groups on the subjects of joint research.

Previous Experience:
The candidate must have a Bachelor’s Degree with a major in Psychology, including completion of undergraduate statistics and research methods for social sciences with a grade of B+ or higher. Of particular interest are candidates with experience with psychology research related to treatment outcome or dissemination and implementation, along with work or volunteer experiences with youth (child and adolescent). Interested applicants should submit CV, 2 references, and a description of your research interests to:
