RELIGION MAJOR INSTRUCTIONS AND POLICIES

- Ten courses required.
- Students must take REL 99 (Theory and Method in Study of Religion). We recommend that students take at least two other courses in religion prior to enrolling in this course.
- Students should have exposure to at least four different religious traditions to fulfill the Diversity Requirement. This may be accomplished through classes in which four different traditions are taught, or through four courses, each focused on a different religious tradition, or through some combination thereof. Students are to take four classes within the department rather than through cross-listed or transfer credits to achieve the diversity requirement.
- Students must choose a subfield in religious studies to fulfill the Depth Requirement. This may be one religious tradition, the traditions of a geographical region, or a religious textual tradition. Students must demonstrate that they have taken at least three classes in that specialty. One of the three courses must be in the doctrinal (theological and philosophical) aspects of religion. In their chosen areas of specialization, students must take two above-100 level courses. These may include an independent study or a senior thesis.
- No course may count for both the diversity and depth requirements.
- No more than four courses transferred from other institutions (including Tufts programs abroad) may count toward the Religion major requirements unless approved by the advisor.
- If you have more than one major, please see Bulletin for rules on double-counting courses.
- If you have a minor, no more than two course credits used toward the minor may be used toward foundation, distribution, major, or other minor requirements.
- Please see Departmental Website for complete Religion major requirements/policies.
